News like this has become commonplace and every once in a while, I just want to thank @SusanSarandon for her campaigning, not just voting, third party. Instead of working to stop Trump, she helped him.

What about Eddie Glaude? He gets a free pass for pushing Jill Stein?

Selfishness remains the bane of our society. This is in our voting and consumer patterns. Instead of being "different, why not join the people who want to oust a clownish authoritarian.

Thanks @ninaturner for reminding people that you voted for Jill Stein in 2016. You and @susansaradon both. You didn't vote for the person who could beat Trump. You helped him by voting third party — in a swing state.

> Nina Turner @ninaturner
> You have some nerve @neeratanden! It's your area of expertise to start mess. Last time I checked, this is America and folks have a right to vote for who that want. Get off @SusanSarandon. She does not answer to you. twitter.com/neeratanden/st…

I will vote for whoever the Dem nominee is in 2020. Hope you will do the same. Though you didn't in 2016.

I appreciate that in 2016 and in 2020, Senator Sanders supports the nominee, whether it's him or someone else. And only wished you and @SusanSarandon had listened to him.

People who tell you it's ok to call an Italian man Fredo are the same people who said it was ok to throw money at a woman leader and call her a whore. And they never think about the energy they take rationalizing the denigration of others.

Oh and look, now Trump, is getting in on the action. I'm not surprised, with his racism, he's going in on the attack.

Calling someone Fredo is a tribute to John Cazale's masterful performance of that character. Refusing to say Fredo upholds the legacy of the cancer that took Cazale's life at such a young age. Sorry to see that you and Chris Cuomo have come out on the side of being pro-cancer.

I saw focus groups of Trump voters in 2016. They thought the fact he was a hugely successful businessman would make him a successful president. The fact he was a loser in business will hurt him. And that is why he's kept his taxes secret.

It's odd how people on here desperately ask why Republicans don't do anything about Trump, and then when one jumps in to actually primary him, they spend their time downplaying him. He's a Republican. Of course you don't agree with @WalshFreedom. I certainly don't.

Agree with you on most things, but we're supposed to be excited this person is gonna get tons of TV time & cash, with 0 evidence anyone who supports Trump would listen to him or change their mind because of it?

He's not just "a Republican"...elevating him is irresponsible.

A racist murderer goes to El Paso to slaughter people. Of course he's influenced by a climate of hate. A climate Trump creates with his "infestation" rhetoric and anti-immigrant viciousness. This hate must be defeated.

This is yet another reason Beto doesn't have the right stuff. I understand the raw emotion here, but a President should have some stoic and reasoned ability to reassure a nation, not to haul off f-bombs like an angry frat bro. He should run for something, but not POTUS.

Objectivity in journalism is sorta important. Neera isn't a journalist, CAP isn't a news source. I hope this helps.

Rohan Advani @rohadvani · Sep 2
If you want to use that logic, CAP is an "independent nonpartisan policy institute" so actually similar standards apply. A journalist can also have personal views, as can Neera, but we can distinguish between org and person. Hope that helps.

I'd just like to point out that Beto is receiving his fair share of harsh criticism for swearing. The idea that he's being lauded and lavished with praise by everyone isn't true. I'd expect the same would happen for the women. Some would praise it, some would not.

1 2 21

Tara Ewald @TeaWald · Sep 2

Exactly. Moreover, it's not like people are praising Beto because they're like "wow, he's so cool!". It is because he is breaking norms in an important way to channel the rage we are all feeling. It won't be everyone's cup of tea. But I've been waiting for it my whole life.

1 2 15

Brash @brashstrike · Sep 2

Precisely. And with breaking norms comes political risk. Do the folks lamenting that their candidate can't do this realize that Beto is not somehow vaulting to the top of the pack because he cursed? He's expressing genuine outrage and that's why it's impactful.

Happy Beto is swearing if that's what it takes to drive home the profanity of this admin's/GOP's deadly subservience to the NRA. And technically, yes, everyone can swear, but I think Magi's list is right & I know it would've launched a 1000 pearl-clutching headlines if HRC did.

With Boris Johnson's parliamentary debacle in the UK in addition to the chaos of the Trump Administration, one thing is clear: xenophobic nationalists may be rising, but when they take power, they are incompetent morons.

Every plan has a cost. One pays for it in taxes or premiums or copays. Yours has a 4% tax on everyone making $29,000 or more. Medicare for America doesn't tax the middle class. You're right, people have a choice. The choice of Dems/public is to allow people to keep private plans

Bernie's plan includes people who are broke and have no money for copays and premiums. No other plan addresses people who are broke.

Are we allowed to call a healthcare plan "universal" if it doesn't include coverage for people with no money for copays/premiums?

We've made a lot of progress over decades. But on some issues we've regressed. When you think Bill Clinton passed a ban on assault weapons- and mass murders went down dramatically - just years after this. And now the NRA controls the Senate - it's really depressing.

There's a media bias toward covering investigations, and that ain't helping Dems in 2020 with voters, who'd prefer they focused on other issues. If Dems focus on "treason" it might help in primary... but the general?

We may disagree here. It is absolutely critical the nominee reaches persuadable voters which are a lot of people. But I think treason for political gain is something everyone gets. Voters in the rust belt, which Dems need to win, as much as anyone else.

This is very worrying. People ignore Trump outreach to Indian Americans at their peril. He did a major rally in New Jersey with Indian Americans in 2016 too. And Indian American Dem leaders need to push back hard against his anti-immigrant xenophobia with the community.

Democrats wanted him to "get Trump." He knew none of them would be interviewed voluntarily and that forcing them would be a long and drawn out process. He felt he could do what he needed to do without it, based on the actual evidence he had.

Watergate prosecutor had statutory protections, a sword and shield. The field of play is vastly different.

During Watergate, there was also no "memo" saying that the president "couldn't" be indicted (which, of course, is complete and total horseshit)

Mueller was hamstringed certainly, but frankly, he chose to respect the recommendation, and not pursue what was in front of him.

Well, Bernie isn't involved directly with Our Revolution & their biggest contribution to date when I last wrote about them last year was $243k to the Standing Rock Sioux tribe. I personally think dark money ■ complicated and bad for voters. But OR is non-profit, not corporate.

The big problem with dark money groups as I have written in the past, is they are not required to reveal their donors to anyone. So OR only takes donations up to $5k. But other groups take way more. Lots of GOP groups are rolling in

The grudge is a main part of the story. It's the rationale after it goes through event the Post has already uncovered.

This is good news. It's fairly likely the immediate negative reaction to his candidacy helped drive his decision. Glad to play a small part in that.

What is this ridiculousness? Trump didn't act to hurt a political opponent...he just holds a grudge, based on nothing, towards Ukraine. This looks like source protection at a meteoric level.

Just a reminder that NYT policy is its reporters can't go on Rachel Maddow to discuss their news stories because that's "partisan" tv but apparently this is ok.

Not wrong for reporters to want to establish whether there was some underlying misconduct w/Biden in Ukraine.

The problem with "but her emails!" coverage was with proportionality: treated as ■ campaign-defining scandal when ■ wasn't (& paled in comparison to Trump scandals).

In the original story on this, the NYT put in paragraph 17 that there's no evidence Joe Biden did anything wrong. That the essential problem with the story. If there's nothing Biden did wrong, it's all conjectured bs.

It is completely stupid that candidates like @corybooker have to spend money to meet the essentially random debate requirements that the DNC has created. Those metrics should not get more restrictive.

> Jennifer Palmieri @jmpalmieri
> .@CoryBooker had to spend lot of $ to get donors needed to make debate stage. Big part of why he needs $ now. I hope DNC doesn't raise bar more. These are new rules & not having impact they were designed to. Campaigns should be spending $ building org not chasing donors.

So, the Republicanism I've known my whole life has basically been a BIG LIE. Foundational principles, law and order, small government, free trade, debt/deficit vigilance. It's all been a lie. The Trump presidency belies all that. It's about 1 thing: the exercise of naked power.

This tweeter confused me with a reporter who made this argument last Tuesday on Andrea Mitchell's show. I never said any such thing. But over a 1000 people liked this lie; a lie anyone could have fact checked. Truly pathetic and a real down side to this website. twitter.com/trisha_tahmasb …

If Bernie's Bullies were keen on winning, they'd jump ship and back her - kinda silly to cling to Bernie as he flounders in the polls when his policy twin is polling so well.

This story could have ended after the first paragraph- it finds Joe Biden did nothing wrong. End of story.

Why the NYT can't basically concede they've wasted a lot of ink on a story that has no there there, especially when Trump is using the smoke as a weapon, is beyond me.

Honestly, this scandal goes far and wide. Here are some basic questions that need to be answered off the top of my head:
1. What is Pompeo's involvement? What did he know? When did he know it?
2. Who in OMB held up Ukraine's money? Who in White House told them to?

> Josh Marshall @joshtpm
> Clear that Pompeo is complicit in President Trump's criminal abuse of power. Indeed, an actual coconspirator. This isn't "inappropriate". It's a criminal conspiracy. twitter.com/FaceTheNation/...

The principle that in a democratic system, the preferred recourse should be at the ballot booth seems underrated in the elite discourse around impeachment, both as a matter of theory and practice (i.e. in understanding why impeaching Trump heretofore isn't very popular).

My free advice to the House Caucus - you have a lot of members with military/national security/foreign policy experience. They are your greatest spokespeople on this. Put them on tv.

I worked in the Clinton WH during the impeachment -this is the opposite of what Clinton did. Clinton worked hard to show he was still able to deliver results for people. Trump takes his marbles and goes home. If that's the case, why re-elect him? What's the purpose of a 2nd term?

Let me tell you a basic thing about this: the House conducts the investigation. The nominee is running for president. Like with Benghazi/email, it can sap its target while voters view the Dem nominee as separate.

It is outrageous that the NYTimes published these details avians the will of the whistleblower. Honestly, what is the continued justification for a lack of a public editor. It seems it's just a clear statement that they want no accountability.

Mention this trump quote about how much trump loves computer security.

"It's very important, If you have something really important, write it out and have it delivered by courier, the old-fashioned way because I'll tell you what, no computer is safe. I don't care what they say, no computer is safe. I have a boy who's 10 years old. He can do anything with a computer. You want something to really go without detection, write it out and have it sent by courier."

Yes, the idea that "extorting a random nation to manufacture dirt on Biden" is straightforward but, for instance, "obstructing an investigation of an attack on the US" is inscrutable is highly contrived. It's that Dems decided to take a pass on that enormous scandal and others.

That's why I find this take so odd.

You know Bernie made this a trap issue. You know there is no clean way of navigating it as a result. Yet, you blame Warren for the messy tightrope not of her making.

That's rewarding Sanders for the trap.

Yeah, how a guy who's in third place is trapping everybody else is beyond me. Warren's problem is she keeps saying she's for Bernie's plan, except where she can make it less realistic and more impossible. Those people will rightly feel betrayed by her when the pivot comes.

It is in the interest of the NYT to attack Biden and neglect trump's children's conflict of interest. They want continued access to the WH. Also, they will make more if he is re-elected. What they neglect to see is he will do a Putin on the press when he is re-elected.

This is hugely important point by @kellymagsamen in the Post today: Trump's use of the classification system to hide his possibly criminal behavior hurt our national security.

Please distribute far and wide.

There are many cultists on this site, but the Assange cultists are the worst. Assange was the agent of a proto fascist state, Russia, to undermine democracy. That is fascist behavior. Anyone on the left should abhor what he did. Not celebrate it.

There are many cultists on this site, but the Assange cultists are the worst. Assange was the agent of a proto fascist state, Russia, to undermine democracy. That is fascist behavior. Anyone on the left should abhor what he did. Not celebrate it.

There are many cultists on this site, but the Assange cultists are the worst. Assange was the agent of a proto fascist state, Russia, to undermine democracy. That is fascist behavior. Anyone on the left should abhor what he did. Not celebrate it.

This is such a devastating loss to the Puerto Rico community, the advocacy community on behalf of Puerto Rico and the CAP family. Enrique was so kind-hearted and a fantastic colleague. We mourn his loss. Our thoughts are with his wonderful wife and children.

> Erin Cohan @erincohan
> My heart is hurting today. Our last conversation was how it felt like he and I versus the world sometimes. Enrique & I had a special bond; one I didn't know I needed but one I'm not sure how I will do without. Rest in peace, my friend.The country owes you a great debt. @eftpolicy twitter.com/Pwr4PuertoRico...

There are many cultists on this site, but the Assange cultists are the worst. Assange was the agent of a proto fascist state, Russia, to undermine democracy. That is fascist behavior. Anyone on the left should abhor what he did. Not celebrate it.

Disagree. Her admission of mistakenly shooting this man is the only explanation. Should have been manslaughter.

Dave Foxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx @thaPhatElvis · 3m
It wasn't a mistake, though. She intended to shoot the man. Because he was black and her irrational fear of black people caused to her act irrationally. The only that was a "mistake" was when she walked into his apartment thinking it was her own.

The inherent contempt power is a constitutionally based authority given to Congress to arrest a person found to be 'obstructing the performance of the duties of the legislature'.

If Pompeo doesn't comply, the House needs to order its Sergeant-At-Arms to take Pompeo into custody.

I find it very hard to believe Trump would issue a transcript that wasn't accurate after Barr put out a memo on the Mueller report that was entirely inaccurate. Oh wait.

Ms. Harris is the only one who seems to get the feeling of pain and terror we all felt in 2016, not just on Nov. 9, but seeing Trump's rise throughout the year. A lot of the other candidates seemed to regard it as an ordinary political loss.

The issue of whether delaying impeachment was right or wrong was made moot by an exogenous event no one foresaw.

No one gets to take a victory lap or demand an apology for an answer we'll now never know.

I agree with this. We will never know. But it's a fact that the current inquiry has broader support and a more unified Dem Party behind it. You can say that's because of a leadership position. Or the facts are better. What's wrong to do it to state as an absolutism 1 or other.

The argument against that is the 'event' was an event because the Dem leadership made it one.That is difficult to determine but support for impeachment was pretty high before the 'event' with even more people only against impeachment for strategic purposes. Impeachment was due

I bristle because I have seen up close that the elevation of politicians to heroic figures actually hurts rather than helps.

It depresses involvement.

It lulls people into thinking government is like a crockpot. You can just set it and forget it while heroes do the cooking.

Same Sen. Johnson who was in Russia on July 4th & in a February 12, 2016 letter, Sens. Rob Portman (R-OH), Ron Johnson (R-WI) & Mark Kirk (R-IL), along with Democratic senators, called for Ukraine's president to fire Shokin. Biden delivered a bipartisan message.

This 2016 letter proves that GOP attacks on Biden over Ukraine are nonsense

It odd that the Trump lawyers don't understand that the impeachment inquiry in the House is akin to a grand jury process and the jury trial is in the Senate. But then again, maybe it's not odd at all that they don't understand the Constitution

People always talk about the unity of the GOP but we are hearing some of the Republican voices now who spoke out against ACA repeal. And by the end of that process, half of Republican voters opposed ACA repeal. And it died. Cracks are spreading. The ice is getting thinner.

The memo you released is clear on pressuring Ukraine. An actual transcript would be worse. But how about you take questioning under oath if you're call was so perfect. Instead of obstructing the whole investigation.

What's even more horrifying is that we don't know if Kurds are being attacked because it serves the US interests or the interest of Trump Organization.

> Businesses linked to the Turkish government are also major patrons of the Trump Organization. Turkish officials have made 14 visits to Trump properties, more than any other country, according to an analysis performed for NBC News by Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington, or CREW.

And a promise to make sure that the press are allowed at every event so that everything said is open and public record.

Alright. That's a good compromise if I'm reading it right. It isn't disarming, but it is making sure there's sunlight and accountability.

Given President Trump's nonstop attacks on the free press and claims of "fake news," it would be great to have a president who didn't attack the media for a while. I guess Joe Biden doesn't want to be that guy.

So, we're learning - not surprisingly - that the July 25 phone call was the tip of a rather huge iceberg. Good, it will help to shoot down a lot of the bad-faith side arguments that are meant to distract. And maybe others will fall. None of it means we have to lose the thread.

Yes, we do. (I don't think we should, but I am fairly confident that a church that refused to do interracial marriages would probably still enjoy tax exempt status).

Ian Millhiser @imillhiser · 33m

FWIW, I'm not sure that there's a case directly on point. Bob Jones permits a religious college to be stripped of tax exempt status for racial exclusion. But Hosanna-Tabor suggests that there are certain essential church functions that the state cannot tamper with. (1/2)

Ian Millhiser @imillhiser · 32m

A good lawyer could argue both sides of this. But I'm close to certain that this Supreme Court would side with the church in such a case, and I don't even think it would be 5-4. (2/2)

This is a great story. And it's great NYT reporting. But in the story it mentions that Giuliani laundered his attacks on Biden thru a right wing reporter. And fails to mention he did the same thru the NYT. I think transparency demands that they be honest about their own role.

I don't think that's how people vote. They don't calculate the marginal utility from each policy position of each candidate. They decide how they feel about the candidates based on their positions. Alignment on something of little import counts about the same as if more import.

Trey Gowdy, who chaired the ridiculous Benghazi hearings, hasn't said a thing about Trump green lighting the Turks to basically free hundreds of Isis fighters by shelling the camps. I welcome his defense of Trump on impeachment. But a reporter might want to ask him about this.

It's amazing how many Republicans so willing to talk about how awful Blagojevich was. Something I fully agreed with. Fascinating how their morals have shifted so completely, so as to defend Trump. Think reminding voters of this is important.

With all due respect no.

By thrusting Hunter in front of a camera on the DAY OF the debate you are literally asking for it to be a part of the narrative.

Also as an aside, just as HRC shouldn't have had a private server, Hunter shouldn't have been doing business in Ukraine.

> Kim Masters @kimmasters

Sanctioning Turkey after their invasion, more than a week after Trump greenlit the attack, seems designed simply to give the GOP cover and does not actually impede the Turkish invasion. In my view, we shouldn't fall for it.

Trump is further hurting the rust belt in his faux Turkey sanctions.

Is there a scenario, a crime, in which you would say impeach, and pressure Pelosi even if she didn't want to? Say he was engaging in sexual abuse, child abuse or had ordered a murder or violent crime?

If GOP were still not going to do anything, still no impeach?

Neera Tanden @neeratanden · Jun 12

This is ridiculous. I've said they should have Mueller testify. They can start the impeachment inquiry now. Based on the Mueller report. I'm simply saying the rhythm of twitter where Trump does something crazy and we all yell at Pelosi seems basically a great set up for Trump.

I agree no on should "yell" at her or beat her up — she's been doing ■ great job — but surely it's fine for people to pressure her on this issue about which, she's been bafflingly resistant to the point of claiming there's little pressure on her to impeach. The messaging is odd.

People. Impeachment does not reign Trump in. It's a judgment on his behavior. It does not stop his behavior. It doesnt mean he leaves office. The Senate is not acting. And after they refuse to act he will say crazy things like he said today.

With respect, this is not binary. Impeachment hearings may not "reign him in." But done properly, they increase the likelihood he will be defeated. Further they are the right thing to do because the assault against the Constitution being undertaken by the WH must confronted.

Go back and watch the tape. Warren wants us to get out of the Middle East and wants a smart policy, but supports the Kurds. Tulsi wants Russian imperialism. Big difference.

I'm a little stuck on Klobuchar's "I'm tired of hearing this called Republican talking points" line - Warren attacked "Republican talking points" in the July debate, not tonight. Something very "the jerk store called, they ran out of you" about this.

What's irritating about this attack on Warren re: Medicare ■ that everyone knows it's BS. It's not "evasive" to say taxes might go up but overall costs will do down. It's the whole f'ing premise. Moderators, "moderates," Rs - everyone knows it. It's all a big rhetorical game.

The American system is dramatically more expensive both overall and for the average consumer than pretty much any other path to basically-free-at-point-of-service program, whether the British or Canadian or German model.

The difference between the Canadian/British model and the Sanders plan is that the former ration care and the latter does not. That is a cost driver.

If HR impeaches, Mitch will have an excruciating dilemma. Summarily dismiss and look like he's obstructing justice
(which will look REAL bad if HR proves strong case). Or allow vote to remove, which requires all Rep Senators to go on the record
Couldn't happen to a nicer guy.

I want not just ideas that poll well, ideas that poll overwhelmingly well and set the stage for a landslide win that includes IA, NC, AZ, GA, and FL and puts control of the senate in play so Democrats can address the structural barriers to progressive policy.

This is my goal too. Johnson-like landslides are what provide progressive policy success. I don't know why this concept is hard for people.

Exactly. It is not "selling out" to pay attention, in a democracy, to what voters want. And if the argument is morality, there's a moral responsibility to win this election for the people who need that the most — they can't afford to wait and try again.

The prohibition comes from banning doctors from accepting private insurance if they accept Medicare. Can only accept private insurance for things uncovered - like cosmetic surgery. This is why experts say it will end private insurance as your base plan. Happy to chat anytime.

But Medicare itself is single-payer. What it's closest to is the Australian system. And as far as I know, M4A doesn't eliminate supplemental insurance. You can correct me if I'm wrong,
(BTW, I went on Medicare last January and I am a big fan.)

No. The Australian system has a stripped down public system and most people buy private insurance on top of it. In Medicare in the US, roughly 2/3 use single payer with many buying supplemental; 1/3 use private insurance as their entire plan.

But I'm not talking about a base plan. Medicare is my base plan now. What I'm saying is how does this plan intend to enforce the prohibition against all private insurance? If a doctor accepts a supplemental plan, is he guilty of Medicare fraud?

The poles of the Medicare discussion in the Democratic primary are...

1) Medicare-for-all legislation that doesn't have the votes to pass and doesn't include details on "how you pay for it"

Folks. I fight like hell every day. I'm not saying we leave the fight. Just acknowledge that it's exhausting. But of course, we have a 15 month battle that we need to win. So keep at it.

Amen. Right here. Been fighting these battles against the evil folks for nearly 20 years.

Then come back soon, & let's put these shheels out of commission for good.

This was little more than a very clumsy, back-handed way for Weigel to get his Hillary swipe in.

I completely missed that I'm in the Gabbard fundraising email she sent out, along with some pretty big institutions. But I feel badly I'm getting so much more credit than my friend @Bakari_Sellers.

> refusal to face their own failures and hypocrisy — shown by establishment warmongers and their corporate media lackeys is not only insulting, it's a threat to our democracy. From media blackouts, to baseless smears about Tulsi's religion and progressive record, to outright despicable attacks by the New York Times, CNN, Neera Tanden and now Hillary Clinton on Tulsi's loyalty to the country she risked her life to serve: Hillary Clinton and her establishment cronies have their knives out for Tulsi, using her as an example in their campaign to intimidate and silence those who dare to stand up for peace," the email continued.

Neera, if Tulsi goes 3rd party, she now has great video from Hillary that lets her argue that she's running against the Democratic Establishment. Of all the people to make a Russia case against Tulsi, it's not Hillary. Why take ANY focus off of Trump? What's the point of that?

Democrats, if you think Hillary criticizing Tulsi makes a 3rd party run less likely, you're dumber than even I think you are. Gabbard loves being called out by a pillar of the Old Establishment. That's what Gabbard wants, you idiots. That's like an invitation to go 3rd party.

I deleted a tweet bc NYT Daily Beast and NBC have all discussed Russian bot support for Tulsi Gabbard, not their push for a 3rd party run. But I continue to not understand why major media outlets aren't more concerned about Russian bot support of Tulsi than Hillary's statement.

They create a fake outrage campaign to try to draw in "real" people, especially blue check marks, for legitimacy, with a goal of divisiveness and alienating some demographics. But they disguise it as something else. No actual names on the accounts, over-the-top hyperbole, etc

I don't buy that support is really declining. I think it's gotten a lot of bad press, some of which reports that support is declining. The proponents will have to do a good job of explaining to the public why it's an idea worth considering.

It was reported last night that Hispanics are sticking with Cruz. Cruz is not a check on DJT and we need that. DJT is talking about a 2nd version of child separation policy. To be a deterrent, the policy will have to be cruel. Also Puerto Rico disaster.

It was reported last night that Hispanics are sticking with Cruz. Cruz is not a check on DJT and we need that. DJT is talking about a 2nd version of child separation policy. To be a deterrent, the policy will have to be cruel. Also Puerto Rico disaster.

About a month ago, I pointed out that the terrible government of Teresa May is still ahead of the opposition, which was an incredibly . weak performance by an opposition party. Very Online People, some smart, told me it was one poll. Well we have another one.

Proof that a multi-party system is not a magic bullet for a functioning democracy. Almost 50% of the folks do not want Brexit. Yet they have almost no representation

Sorry.

The only realistic way Gantz can form a majority is with Lieberman, who is a far-right secular nationalist like Bannon.
Their power share would make it more of a center-right coalition.

I prefer Gantz, too, but let's not be naive. He is old Likud in new blue and white clothing.

Democrats, if you think Hillary criticizing Tulsi makes a 3rd party run less likely, you're dumber than even I think you are. Gabbard loves being called out by a pillar of the Old Establishment. That's what Gabbard wants, you idiots. That's like an invitation to go 3rd party.

Wow Tom, I thought you'd understand this better. It's not what Tulsi does. It's what voters see. And if she goes third party after this, it will be seen by voters as a move that is aligned with Russia's interest in the election.

Neera, if Tulsi goes 3rd party, she now has great video from Hillary that lets her argue that she's running against the Democratic Establishment. Of all the people to make a Russia case against Tulsi, it's not Hillary. Why take ANY focus off of Trump? What's the point of that?

Neera, if Tulsi goes 3rd party, she now has great video from Hillary that lets her argue that she's running against the Democratic Establishment. Of all the people to make a Russia case against Tulsi, it's not Hillary. Why take ANY focus off of Trump? What's the point of that?

Democrats, if you think Hillary criticizing Tulsi makes a 3rd party run less likely, you're dumber than even I think you are. Gabbard loves being called out by a pillar of the Old Establishment. That's what Gabbard wants, you idiots. That's like an invitation to go 3rd party.

Wow Tom, I thought you'd understand this better. It's not what Tulsi does. It's what voters see. And if she goes third party after this, it will be seen by voters as a move that is aligned with Russia's interest in the election.

Neera, if Tulsi goes 3rd party, she now has great video from Hillary that lets her argue that she's running against the Democratic Establishment. Of all the people to make a Russia case against Tulsi, it's not Hillary. Why take ANY focus off of Trump? What's the point of that?

Wow Tom, I thought you'd understand this better. It's not what Tulsi does. It's what voters see. And if she goes third party after this, it will be seen by voters as a move that is aligned with Russia's interest in the election.

Neera, if Tulsi goes 3rd party, she now has great video from Hillary that lets her argue that she's running against the Democratic Establishment. Of all the people to make a Russia case against Tulsi, it's not Hillary. Why take ANY focus off of Trump? What's the point of that?

Democrats, if you think Hillary criticizing Tulsi makes a 3rd party run less likely, you're dumber than even I think you are. Gabbard loves being called out by a pillar of the Old Establishment. That's what Gabbard wants, you idiots. That's like an invitation to go 3rd party.

"like"? Pretty sure this firmly falls in the category of authoritarian behavior. He has proven to have no morals; Our elected and appointed GOP have proven to have no ability to contain him. It will just get worse. Our Republic is very much at stake.

Especially with Barr promoting it. The first political opponent who is charged as a result of Barr's actions is the first nail in the coffin of the republic. Impeachment can't happen soon enough and it needs to include Barr, Pompeo, and Mnuchin for participating in obstruction.

I feel like we should just drop the Quid pro Quo term altogether with respects to this and label it what it actually is: bribery. QpQ has been over-litigated and is losing meaning. Bribery is explicitly stated in the constitution as a reason for removal.

Using the term lynching here is so offensive it hurts. Trump is a racist. Full stop. But he's also a criminal, who is shaking down countries for dirt, who wants us to ignore important testimony today. Let's condemn his racism but remind people he's both a criminal and a racist.

Obviously, Trump really believes he cannot be impeached. Either he is once again in a delusional state, or he has a secret, which could be that he has bribed the appropriate parties and nothing will come of the impeachment inquiry. Stranger things have happened.

1. Abuse of Power
2. Obstruction of Justice
3. Campaign Finance violations
4. Emoluments

No more hearings. Just get on with it, and let the Senate deal with it.

Trump is far less popular than Bush. But Democrats have 2016 PTSD and now read a 10-point Biden or Warren lead and say "but what about Wisconsin?" (We actually get a Wisconsin poll today)

I'm filled with fury watching this video.

This is a child. A scared child crying. Traumatized and brutalized by a police officer. Hearing her cries, seeing this just kills me as a mom. I wish I could hug her.

An official had to say she's not a threat. What if he wasn't there?

Keith Boykin @keithboykin
Farmington, NM police officer Zachary Christensen has resigned after video showed him roughing up a sixth grader. The officer denied he was using excessive force on the 11-year-old girl even after a school administrator told him she is not a threat to anyone.

I don't think the media blowing up her emails into an election-defining story was driven by personal animus. Instead, it was false balance—the desire to prove impartiality by doing "hard-hitting" stories on both sides, even if one side jaywalks and the other commits mass murder.

In the long arc of history, @marcorubio will see that the way that Republicans doused themselves in kerosene and lit the match was not at the hands of the left but by their fealty to Trump.

I am working hard for that day and I hope you are too.

As frustrating as it may be to have these hearings going on behind closed doors ... they are consistent with the rules. ... When were the rules written last? In January of 2015. And who signed them? John Boehner. And who enacted them? A Republican majority."

You misread my point, which is a structural one and has to do with enacting any laws, including in this example, a public option, let alone M4All. No legislation will pass unless Ds take senate, kill filibuster. But most Dem officials won't commit to that.

I would assume that it's about the DC judge ruling that the DOJ has to release the unreacted grand jury testimony to Congress. Although the decision will be appealed, it's a win and one step closer.

Not saying it's some minor quibble. I'm saying considering the combination of her incentives in (i) the primary (ii) the general election, and (iii) what happens if she becomes president, this might be a better all-around move for her than figuring out how to pay for Bernie M4A.

The one conspiracy theory I am 100% in for is that SNL goes pretty easy on Warren bc writers/McKinnon regret how Clinton was portrayed in 2016. No Warren sketch at all this weekend, after her first bad news cycle in a while, so my theory stands.

They can say all they want but they'll regret it when @ChrisEvans plays him in the movie.

I'm also looking forward to making Sondland a verb for lying in congressional testimony and going to jail.

> Imagine live, televised hearings where Colonel Vindman, Bill Taylor, Fiona Hill, and possibly John Bolton and others all tell the same story, back-to-back. Republicans will do their thing, but it will be an incredibly damning portrait of a president who abused his power.

Especially if Dems let a lawyer question, while Republicans just spew conspiracy theories, it will be pretty powerful for Americans to see. Do it in prime time.
